Dr. Richard H. Craft (From Pg. 1)

In 2005, Dr. Craft was personally involved as a delegate to China, with the International People-to-People program co-sponsored by the Foundation for Chiropractic Education and Research.

After listening to Dr. Craft, it becomes apparent that he believes experience is the dean of knowledge. He learned first hand the procedures of other healthcare teaching such as Acupressure, a procedure that is radically different from our Western teachings, that has 5,000 years of proven successes in healing.

We need to broaden our understanding of healing to a more open-minded approach to be able to effectually apply this knowledge in our medical treatment procedures here at home today. It is of paramount concern that we expand our efforts to improve our healthcare when we consider the poor health of the US populace in the small business and working classes.

Dr. Craft agrees that we all need to expand our horizons with new knowledge that will improve our patient recovery rates and early diagnostic detection. Tools such as Kinesiology are becoming standard procedure. He is a member of this 'new to the West', cutting edge form of diagnosis called Kinesiology, a procedure that is at the forefront of new diagnostic practices. He is also a Member of the International College of Applied Kinesiology with over 500 hours of completed study. Dr. Craft is also a member of the Gideon's International Society and a delegate to Ghana, West Africa.

Dr. Craft, like Sir Thomas Moore is certainly "A Man For All Seasons" and a community minded man as well. (More to come on Dr. Craft next week)

DRAGONFLIES By Peggy DeWire

A dragonfly begins life in the water as a crawling bug-like nymph and ends it several years later a beautiful flying insect with four transparent wings that glisten in the sunlight with rainbow colors. They fly so fast in 60 mph bursts that they usually escape from birds and animals.

The dragonfly's long slender body can be red, green or blue with white, black or yellow markings. The shape suggests the name "darning needle." Small and graceful damselflies have more fragile bodies, brightly colored.

Three hundred and fifty million years ago giant dragonflies with two-foot wingspread zoomed around that ancient world. Nowadays only two families remain in the order Odonata dragonflies and damselflies most plentiful in the tropics.

The large head is attached to the body along with two small antennae, strong jaws and two compound eyes that cover most of the head. Humans have one lens in each eye; dragonflies have five hundred, each seeing only a piece of the whole picture.

But a thousand images fit together like a jigsaw puzzle making a complete scene.

Dragonflies can see motionless objects six feet away, moving objects three times that. Since dragonflies hunt solely on the wing, they rely on their wonderful eyesight. Damselflies fly more weakly but hunt the same way.

True dragonflies hold their wings out horizontally at rest while damselflies perch with narrow wings together upright.

A dragonfly has six spiny strong legs which can perch but cannot walk. As it zooms through the air, it gathers its legs into a basket to catch mosquitoes and black flies which are eaten while flying. Dragonflies are extremely good hunters that consume their own weight every thirty minutes. What a beneficial insect to man!

Dragonflies can mate in flight. Often after mating the male suspends the female on egg laying trips around a pond while she hovers to drop her hundreds of eggs in the water or attach them to water weeds.

Adult dragonflies live several months whereas their offspring take several years in water before their life cycle is ended.

The young dragonfly (nymph) hatches from the egg in about a week and walks along the bottom of the pond hunting in a stop-and-look manner. He also can jet rapidly through the water by squirting water out of the tip of his tail.

A nymph breathes through another tube in its tail by sucking water in and out and extracting oxygen from the water.

Nymphs are voracious hunters of small underwater creatures, including tadpoles and small minnows. I call them "mud tigers."

They have a curious trap to catch prey which no other insect has. The lower lip is a long hinged mouth part with sharp hooks at the tip. This is shot forward like a frog extends its tongue to catch a fly. When not in use, it folds over the face like a mask.

While developing into an adult dragonfly, a nymph sheds its skin (molts) a dozen times over the next several years. For the final molt the nymph climbs out of the water onto a reed or rock. Here it sheds its skin for the last time; wings emerge and dry off and it flies away, glistening like a rainbow. Dragonflies are a reliable yardstick that indicates a clean water pond.

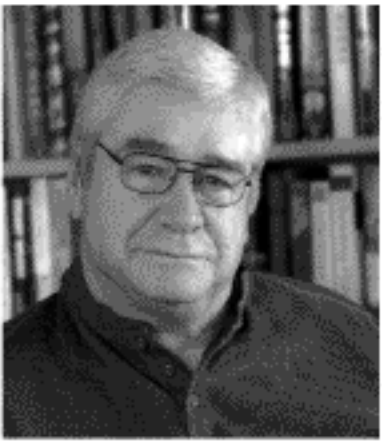

Some years ago a group of us went fishing in upstate New York and I brought along some irresistible bait, a dozen mud tigers in a coffee can, which I put on the cabin porch while we got unpacked and settled in.

The next afternoon we took the coffee can down to the dock, opened the lid - and watched our bait fly away.

Helpful Hint from Mary Goodbye Fruit Flies

To get rid of pesky fruit flies, take a small glass, fill it 1/2 with Apple Cider Vinegar and 2 drops of dish washing liquid; mix well. You will find those flies drawn to the glass and gone forever!

THE MYSTERIOUS BOOK REPORT NO. 9 By John Dwaine McKenna

Some of the best thrillers and mysteries are driven by the idea that an ordinary woman or man is somehow caught up in an extraordinary situation. Time and place, or circumstances and events force the protagonist to act. Maybe it's fate, maybe it's not, but he or she is inexorably compelled to get involved. The Ranger (Putnam, $25.95, 354 pages, ISBN 978-0-399-15748-6) by Ace Atkins is just such a book.

When US Army ranger Colson Quinn returns home on leave for the funeral of the uncle who raised him, he finds his northwest Mississippi hometown overrun with crime. A well-known scoundrel is running the county and Quinn's uncle, the county sheriff, is dead by his own hand. Meth dealers are openly manufacturing and dealing their product, prostitution and crime are flourishing. Colson Quinn, the Ranger rides into town in (what else) a pickup truck and takes on the bad guys in a way that reminded me a lot of High Noon, the '50's western starring Gary Cooper. If you like your heroes crew-cut and wrapped in red, white and blue, you'll be cheering for Quinn and his sidekicks, a one-armed black man who happens to be a decorated war hero and a female deputy sheriff named Lillie Virgil.

Atkins has written several stand-alone crime novels, but this one looks to be the first of a series. And with the author's pitch-perfect ear for southern speech and dialogue; I think his name will be on the best seller lists soon.

Best sellers . . . hmmm . . . you know that the local library is chock-full of best sellers, right? And you know that if they don't have it, they can get a copy of most anything through the inter-library loan program? Good.

So, are you gonna go check out the Daniel Pierce Library and the Time and the Valleys Museum in Grahamsville? I hope so, because by now you all should know that "Those who will not read have no advantage over those who cannot read." ---Mark Twain

Hope you're reading something good.

Whose slogan is "Learn by Doing"? 4H! This year, the 4H Puppy Pals served the community in many different ways, such as helping to support our Town's Renaissance Project. We helped lift our community's spirits!

4H Puppy Pals raised money to help local families and to donate to charities such as the Discovery Center and Ronald McDonald House. We also helped to beautify our Town by planting flowers in front of Tri-Valley School, cleaning the fairgrounds in time for the Little World's Fair, and making a display in the Grahamsville Post Office. The theme was "Recycling", and we won First Place in 4H! We decorated the Neversink sign on Route 42 in winter, spring, summer, and fall. Some of the members of the group made dog bone signs using their hands. 4H students also went to the Sullivan County Adult Care Center and sang Christmas carols.

Puppy Pals also do fun activities such as making pottery with clay, snow tubing at Holiday Mountain, and giving oral presentations at Cornell Cooperative Extension.

It was fun helping other people in our Town to "make the best better", our 4H motto. As part of our 4H Pledge, we promise to use our "heads for clearer thinking" and our "hands for larger service." As a group, we used our heads to think of ideas to help our community, and our hearts and hands to do the work!

Neversink Native Comes Home as a Healer

(From Pg. 1) Davis added, "I realize now that working there for six years was my way of being a healer at that time."

She is featured in two books and several publications about 9/11, including the soon-to-be-released Life Is Too Short, by Wendy Healy.

Facing several major life changes when the foundation closed, Davis attended a retreat at Kripalu Center in the Berkshires. It was there she met her mentor and began training extensively in Peruvian shamanism. She received initiations and blessings from shaman Don Francisco in the Andes, and currently assists in teaching several times a year at Kripalu.

Davis maintains a private practice in Westchester County, and facilitates workshops including Journey to Your Muse, a fusion of shamanism and creativity enhancement. She is also an ordained minister and performs ceremonies including weddings and baby-blessings. In August, she will release her e-guide, Office Shamanism: Big Time Energy Shifting Inside and Out.

Combining mind, body, and spirit in shamanic healing sessions comprehensively addresses the root causes of illness, injury, and distress. "I see my clients as whole human beings with life stories, not as a set of symptoms. I've seen tremendous growth and empowerment happen when energetic blocks and limiting beliefs are released. Shamanic tools can be used for just about anything - phobias, depression, anxiety, chronic illness and injury, relationship troubles, setting new goals and intentions... there's really no limit to what we can work with, and most people feel huge shifts in just one session. All you need is curiosity and a willingness to explore."

Davis is happy to be coming back to Neversink. "It's not the way I would have imagined, years ago, that I would visit the hometown, but it's perfect! I get to reconnect with where I grew up, and offer something special in the process."

The offerings at New Age include an abbreviated version of Journey to Your Muse for guests on Friday night. On Saturday August 13, Davis is available for private healing consultations for guests and non-guests. To make an appointment, contact the Spa at (845) 985-7600.

Visit www.pamohealing.com for more information about Davis and her work.

A Sense of Awe and Wonder Awaits In "The Valley Of The Giants"

Maria Reidelbach of Accord likes to think big and is taking her giant roadside attraction building to the next level. Creator of the world's largest garden gnome at the Homegrown Mini-Golf Course located at Kelders Farm on Rt. 209 in Accord, Maria and others have seen the sense of awe and wonder created by the presence of the giant gnome, which is aptly named Gnome Chomsky. The statue brings smiles to many who pass it in their travels and it has become a real attraction which draws many visitors from near and far.

At a recent press conference, Maria, her design team, along with co-host Richard Travers of the Rondout Valley Business Association and supporters from throughout the Rondout Valley unveiled the concept and plans for "The Valley of The Giants" which is designed to help bolster local small businesses by drawing tourists into the valley to visit the giants, each of which will tell a story about the local history and lore associated with each location. The next giant being considered is a statue of a cement miner to be located on an existing stone plinth near the railroad trestle in Rosendale, an idea which is supported by Town of Rosendale Supervisor Patrick McDonough, Rosendale Town Councilwoman Manna Jo Greene and Bill Brooks of Rosendale, who was the creator of the annual Rosendale Pickle Festival, which enjoys a growing and international attendance.

The inspiration for building the giants came to Maria from a rich history of past giants which blossomed along with the age of automobile travel. One such giant was the 31 room hotel on Coney Island which was built in the shape of an elephant in the late 19th century and which sadly burned to the ground in a spectacular fire around the year 1900. The prototype giant elephant named Lucy which is also known as the Margate Elephant still exists and it was designated as a National Historic Landmark in 1976. Another well known giant is the Flanders Duck which has become a well known icon and tourist attraction on Long Island.

As to how Gnome Chomsky came to be, Maria said: "We created our giant gnome to draw attention to Kelders Farm and Mini-Golf. We knew that farms and small businesses like ours have a rough time competing with national brands and big box stores. It's hard to have a visibility and brand recognition in competition with corporations which have millions for advertising. As Gnome Chomsky's reputation grew, the Guinness Book world record fame became international."

Chris Kelder, proprietor of Kelder's farm said: "We've formed a symbiotic relationship. It's been very interesting to look at things from the eyes of an artist rather than the straight rows of the farmer, so having something a little off the wall in front of your parking lot is nothing but good! I like that he always has a smile and you hear that as people drive by it brightens their day. It's something out of the ordinary to look at and it's become a landmark."

Maria presented an impressive array of statistics derived from the Google search engine which suggests that the media coverage of the giant garden gnome dwarfs that of simply entering the term "Rondout Valley" or "Rondout Valley Business Association". Of the 161,000 hits for "giant garden gnome" she said: "We've only been around 5 years. That's how much attention you can get with a ridiculous lump of concrete. It's just incredible. The giants would tell the stories of the local places, the lore, history, products, the characters and they would literally put a face on the local establishments."

Mayor Jeff Kaplan of Ellenville was enthusiastic about the plan and related that: "From the point of Ellenville perspective we are at the point where our community has to re-invent itself. We lost our industrial base and whether it comes back or not is questionable. Our resorts aren't really doing what they used to and I feel that this can be a very valuable source of getting people to come to what I believe is one of the most beautiful areas in the world."

Town of Rochester Supervisor Carl Chipman was also enthusiastic about the "Valley of the Giants" and said: "I think it's a fantastic idea for the entire region. We really need to work together to promote these things instead of competing against each other. I would prefer that it be underwritten by the business community or grants. I really can't spend the taxpayer's money on it but I can support the business doing it and that is how I have worked on it. It's taking off and it's going to work! Chomsky is a draw. It's amazing! I see good things coming from this." For more information, please visit www.valley-of-the-giants.com

RESERVOIR MUSIC NOTES-

Fred Perry, Owner of Reservoir Music Center
3179 Route 28, Shokan, NY 12481 (845)657-6127

Wow! As I sit here writing this column, I'm watching Paul McCartney at Citi Field in Queens performing "I'm Down", seamlessly interspersed with footage and vocals from The Beatles renowned performance of the same song at Shea Stadium in 1965, and I gotta say, it's pretty great! He is an amazingly talented guy! He's part of possibly the greatest songwriting partnership ever, one of the best and most unique and melodic bass players on the planet, fantastic singer, also plays every other instrument there is, and is one of the most exacting performers I've ever seen. Every note is perfect! He's probably the richest man in the music business, and deservedly so. It's funny, because I'm not that big a fan of his solo stuff, with, of course, many exceptions. He has recorded many albums worth of excellent, fabulous, great, rockin' material since the breakup of The Beatles, but only a few songs really grabbed me in a big way. I even walked out of a Wings show at Madison Square Garden once, but you just can't deny the man's talent and presence! To sum it up, the second most popular rock n roll band of all time, The Rolling Stones, are rock n roll royalty, but, and people forget this, The Beatles were GODS! Sir Paul ended his show with Sgt. Peppers Lonely Hearts Club Band (the song) into The End from Abbey Road. Truly inspiring!

Well, on a sad note, we lost Amy Winehouse this week. By now you've all heard about it, so I'm not telling you anything you didn't already know, but I could not let an artist of her stature move on from this world without some sort of tribute. Now, I know some of you think that she was nothing but a drug addict, and she was asking for it and she got what she deserved, and she deserves no sympathy, and it's the same old boring story of drug addiction ruining a talented persons life, BUT, I have to say that Amy was a lot more than that! She had a unique voice, knew how to deliver a song, and was a major talent! She had it all! She was the complete package! Unfortunately, the package also included uncontrollable use of some pretty dangerous drugs! But that does not take away from her talents! Tony Bennett said that Amy was "an artist of immense proportions... an extraordinary musician with a rare intuition as a vocalist... an exceptional talent." Well said, Mister Bennett. R.I.P. Amy Winehouse. She will be missed.

This is gonna be a pretty darn rockin' week, lemme tell ya! Starting tonight, Thursday, July 28, at the Bearsville Theater, with DWEEZIL ZAPPA performing his dad, Frank Zappa's, material. Dweezil ain't resting on his neither. The acorn... as they say. Frank's formidable talent as a guitarist was sometimes dwarfed by his even more formidable talents as a composer and bandleader, and Dweezil can wail too! This should be an awesome show, so why not make it one of my Picks of the Week.

Also tonight at The Falcon in Marlboro, PROFESSOR LOUIE AND THE CHROMATICS. Always good, I've heard these folks are peaking right now, so if ya can't afford $50 for Dweezil, make your way over to the cozy confines of The Falcon, where there's never a cover charge.

Friday night, July 29, your choices are between MIKE AND RUTHIE at The Kleinert Center in Woodstock and THE ALEXIS P. SUTER BAND at, once again, The Falcon. Mike and Ruthie are well known as members of The Mammals and Alexis is a veteran of more than a hundred opening slots at Levon's Rambles. They're both great, so I suppose it depends what you're in the mood for. Alexis is rockin' blues with a big voice, and Mike and Ruthie are more like virtuoso but accessible acoustic folk-rock, if that makes any sense.

There is also another show on Friday that could be great, but it's kind of quirky and you'll have to travel for it. The show is in Norfolk, Connecticut and the musician is LES DUDEK. Les who, you might say. Well, I guarantee you've heard this guy play guitar. If you've heard The Allman Brothers' "Ramblin' Man" or "Jessica", then you've heard Les. If you've heard Steve Miller's "Fly Like an Eagle" or the "Book of Dreams" album, you've heard Les. And if you remember Boz Scagg's "Lowdown" or "Lido Shuffle", well, then you've heard Les Dudek. So, you see what I mean? This could be worth the drive, and I know he tours, but I don't remember seeing a Les Dudek show advertised for about 30 years, so this is definitely a rare opportunity, so rare that it's another Pick of the week!

You can take the night off to recuperate on Saturday, July 30, or you can go to LEVON'S RAMBLE. The guest this week is RAY WYLIE HUBBARD, who is also playing Sunday night at The Bearsville Theater. Ray is a really great and funny guy who wrote "Up Against the Wall Redneck Mothers", and is part of the Jerry Jeff Walker/Billie Joe Shaver/ Guy Clark/ Gary P. Nunn school of Texas songwriting. I've seen him live and he's great. Nuff said!

And finally, we end the week on a high note with LITTLE FEAT at The Bearsville Theater. Hopefully, this band needs no introduction. If they do, you're gonna have to look 'em up, cause I gotta get some sleep. Suffice to say, this is my third Pick of the Week.

Have a great one!

Arts Society of Kingston
The 2011 Kingston Sculpture Biennial opening reception was a success! Attached are several photos (credit to the Main Street Manager Project and ASK's Media Consultant, Rachel Carey), that capture the sculptures beautifully. This years biennial, Insight/Onsite will run from July through October, in the waterfront district of downtown Kingston. Insight/Onsite aims to create a concentrated installation of artworks along the Lower Broadway median and the beautiful Rondout Waterfront Walkway with the intention of creating dialogue between artists and community. The theme is seeking visions of the future, reflections of the past, and the realities of the present as they relate to this specific site. For more information on the sculptors involved in this exhibition, please contact the curator, Robert Johnson - johnsonr@sunyulster.edu.; 845-338-0331 communications@askforarts.org; r www.askforarts.org

Green Concierge, which is conceived of and administered by environmental consulting firm HospitalityGreen, has been working with Frost Valley since December 2010. During that time, 24 members of the Frost Valley staff have participated in an onsite Green Facility Training and the institution has implemented a number of major sustainable practices, including: replacing all light bulbs with energy efficient ones, recycling, composting, disposing of hazardous waste according to state regulations, using non-toxic cleaning products, upgrading sinks, showerheads and toilets to water-conserving models, purchasing recycled-content soft tissues, paper towels and office paper, and sourcing local produce whenever possible. HospitalityGreen's online Resource Tracking Tool (The RTT) helps them track measurable environmental improvements and target opportunities for reducing costs.

Sustainable living has always been a core value for Frost Valley, and the organization continually strives to be conscientious caretakers of their facilities, natural resources, environment, community and each other. Tom Hotsapple, Frost Valley's Director of Operations, has led the participation in the Green Concierge program. "I'm thrilled at the advances we have made through the Green Concierge Project. Working with GC has formalized our sustainable efforts and presented an opportunity to refresh what was started years ago. Ultimately, it has changed the culture of our organization and our efforts will be passed along to the 40,000 people a year who come to use our facility. Seventy percent of those guests are kids, so we are creating a healthy and sustainable place and environmental awareness for the next generation." Evadne Giannini, Principal of HospitalityGreen LLC, says, "Frost Valley is the first of the more than 30 Green Concierge participants to receive certification. It couldn't go to a more worthy organization. They have infiltrated sustainable practices into every aspect of their operation and really set the bar high for others to follow."

The GC Certification process is structured in three tiers (Bronze, Silver and Gold) - with each tier providing a realistic benchmark and advancement to subsequent tiers dependent upon a business' commitment, their ongoing use of the RTT to track resource use, and their dedication to increasingly rigorous sustainable practices. Frost Valley will be working towards receiving the silver certification in 2012.

The GC Certification was recently recognized and ranked by Greenlodge.org as a Silver Tier Program, placing it within an elite group of national and international third party certification programs.

"Just...Air" a group exhibit at Loft Gallery

The concept of 'Just... Air' began as painter Dale Emmart and photographer Karen Bell started comparing and combining the images of peers that discuss the sky and air in metaphor. Sandy Gellis' work combines etchings of turkey vulture flight sequences combined with inkjet images. Tina Hutchings' iconic, minimal maritime collages reflect upon the effect of barometric air pressure in and around her Bermuda home. Arthur Levine makes paintings that float manmade machines in fields of blue marks influenced by cinematic lighting. Glenn Lieberman's photographs from an express train window in France use time and density of atmosphere to capture the weight of air compounded by speed. Esther Podemski transfers photographic images of industrial exhaust clouds and migratory bird patterns into skillfully wrought drawings. Linda Stillman maintains a diary of daily sky portraits as a meditative discipline of observation. Her installations infer the particular and unique with memory, clarity, and repetition. Air is the common denominator.

Bell has photographed the environment for many years in all phases of existence-full blush of beauty and shortly after major disasters. In every effort she has sought the particular beauty, the hope, the future of what she was seeing. Photographing the sky with a Polaroid camera she instantly captures a fleeting moment in time.

Emmart has been a plein air painter since coming to northeastern Pennsylvania 20 years ago. After seeing Constables' notable sketches in London, sky portraits have occupied her summer paintings. Beyond the sky sketches, Emmart uses ideas of vastness in landscape, natural phenomenon, and the scrutiny of popcorn blasts in her eclectic selection of paintings.

Loft Gallery is located at 37 Main Street, Narrowsburg, NY, and is open Tuesday - Saturday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. For more information, call (845) 252-7576 or visit www.artsalliancesite.org.

Applause, applause!

Two refurbished Catskill Mountain theaters - the Woodstock Playhouse and the Orpheum in Tannersville -- have reopened this summer, thanks in part to financial assistance provided by the (CWC).

The Woodstock Playhouse was recently purchased by the Pan American Dance Foundation with a low-interest loan of $700,000 from CWC's Catskill Fund for the Future. It reopened July 10 with a gala reception and a rousing performance of "A Chorus Line" to launch a musical theater season that will include "Anything Goes" and "Hair."

The landmark open air playhouse has been fully enclosed by its new owners and will be operational year-round. The project included new seating, stage lighting, two art galleries and major infrastructure improvements.

The Catskill Mountain Foundation (CMF) held its own celebration July 16 at the expanded and renovated Orpheum Theater in Tannersville. An inaugural ceremony included recognition of the CWC for its help - a loan of $850,000 that allowed the Foundation to complete the stage, the 270-seat auditorium and lighting and sound systems.

The 13,344-square-foot theater is considered a key component in an ongoing effort by CMF and others to revitalize the village and establish the Greene County Mountaintop as a cultural destination.

Jon Sennett Strongly Endorsed by Working Families Party

Dan Cantor, Executive Director of the Working Families Party of New York State was in Kingston today to personally announce the party's endorsement of Jon Sennett for Ulster County District Attorney.

"We bring strong and emphatic support of Jon Sennett to this election for Ulster County District Attorney," affirmed Mr. Cantor. "We bring support from working families in Ulster County who are worried about violent crime in our streets and our schools."

Mr. Cantor continued, "And we bring support from working families who are very concerned about corruption in our government and our institutions. We know that Jon Sennett is committed to be the DA for Ulster County who can really fight crime at all levels. He will aggressively attack the terror grip that gang violence has on our communities and he will aggressively investigate and prosecute crimes in our government."

Sennett thanked Dan Cantor for all the hard work of the Working Families Party and for their commitment and action in fighting for working women and men in our county and throughout New York State.

"I am very honored and proud of your support for this campaign," Sennett said. "The Working Families Party is fighting for justice and freedom for all of our families. You are fighting for a better future for our children and our parents. You are fighting for good jobs and basic fundamental rights for all workers. I am honored to accept your endorsement and I am proud to be a part of that fight. I stand with you and will work side by side with you to ensure that the highest standards of justice and rule of law are upheld here in Ulster County."

One of the biggest concerns in Ulster County is that the District Attorney's office is not proactive and aggressive enough on stopping gang and other violent crimes before they happen.

Sennett pledged, "I will not just wait until our law enforcement officers bring the cases through the door. I will work with them to reach out to our communities and schools, and I will put violent crimes against our families, our children and our seniors as my first priority. We should be safe in our homes and on our streets. Violence on our streets has got to stop in Ulster County."

Jon Sennett is a former Bronx County Assistant District Attorney with over seventeen years of courtroom experience in prosecution, criminal defense and family court. His training and experience was in one of the toughest crime fighting agencies in the country.

Cantor remarked, "We are very proud to endorse Jon Sennett for Ulster County District Attorney. We see in him the dedication, experience and work ethic required to be a leader as District Attorney. Jon Sennett is both tough on crime and smart on crime. We look forward to having a District Attorney who will crack down on street crime in our communities and who will bring public integrity to the forefront of our government."

With a dedication to public integrity and building safer communities, Jon Sennett asserted that he will continue to take these commitments directly to the voters, visiting every town in Ulster County, meeting as many people as possible, listening to their concerns and suggestions and asking them to support this important campaign.

Jon Sennett declared today, "As your District Attorney, I will work diligently with law enforcement to help translate their hard work on the streets into successful and just prosecutions in the courtroom. I am ready to serve and I will work with the people of Ulster County to restore the District Attorney's office as an aggressive tool for fighting crime and building safe communities."

Bonacic: Governor Signs Legislation to Protect Judges

State Senator John J. Bonacic (R/C/I - Mt. Hope) today announced his legislation to protect judges, (S.2143D) was signed into law by Governor Cuomo.

The legislation amends the penal law by adding a new section which states a person is guilty of assault on a judge when, with intent to prevent the judge from performing official judicial duties he or she causes serious physical injuries. The term "judge" being defined as a judge of a court of record or a justice court.

"It is our responsibility to protect those who uphold justice in this state to the absolute best of our ability," said Senator Bonacic. "An attack on a Judge amounts to an attack on the integrity of our judicial system; this type of attack should be met with an increased penalty. While I am happy we have established this legislation, I am disappointed we were unable to adopt penalties that would also cover District Attorneys and Assistant District Attorneys; and plan to continue to push the Assembly to extend these protections to them."

China Produces Over 95 Percent of World's Rare Earth Metals, But Restricts and Bans Shipments of Exports

Washington, DC - After the World Trade Organization ruled earlier this month that China has violated international rules by restricting exports of raw materials used in clean technology products, U.S. Senator Kirsten Gillibrand (D-NY) pressed China's Ambassador to the United States today to address her specific concerns over the country's stronghold of rare earth elements (REEs). China accounts for over 95 percent of the world's supply of REEs - minerals used in a broad range of household consumer products, as well as high-tech, clean energy and defense industry products that are vital for America's economic future and national security. China's restriction of export shipments creates an unlevel playing field among American companies.

Senator Gillibrand wrote in a letter to Ambassador Zhang Yesui, "This is deeply disappointing and harmful to the interests of both of our countries, as well as the global community at large... China's quotas, and the reported leveraging of its supply monopoly to force companies to shift production to China, have the potential to unfairly undermine the competitiveness of U.S. companies and to mitigate the benefit of years of American investment in the research and development innumerable green technologies."

Earlier this month, the World Trade Organization (WTO) announced that China violated WTO obligations by restricting exports on raw materials, with last year's supply at an all-time low. While the WTO's decision does not specifically address rare earth elements, China increased export restrictions last year on more than a dozen rare earth metals. Senator Gillibrand expressed concerns at the time and is now reiterating her call for China's Ambassador to reexamine the country's rare earth policies.

Hinchey Announces $200,000 in Federal Funding to Help Homeless Veterans in the Hudson Valley Find Affordable Housing

Washington, DC -- Congressman Maurice Hinchey (D-NY) today announced that the Poughkeepsie Housing Authority has been awarded $212,520 in federal funds to provide permanent housing for homeless veterans in the Mid-Hudson Valley. The funds were awarded through the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) Veterans Affairs Supportive Housing (VASH) program of which Hinchey is a steadfast supporter.

"Nobody who has served this country with honor should be living on the streets," said Hinchey. "This program has already helped over 30 veterans in the Mid-Hudson Valley, and this additional federal funding will go to help so many more. I'm pleased that the Poughkeepsie Housing Authority will be able to use this funding to support even more veterans and expand upon the important work they have already done. I'm going to continue supporting this program and fighting to ensure that we take care of our veterans when they return home."

The Poughkeepsie Housing Authority will use the funding to provide 25 veterans with housing vouchers. The Authority has already helped 35 veterans find housing through previously awarded funding. The program goals include promoting maximal veteran recovery and independence to sustain permanent housing in the community for the veteran and the veteran's family.

"We look forward to continue to assist our homeless veterans while realizing our efforts pale in comparison to all they have done for us and our country," said Stanley Merritt, Executive Director of the

Poughkeepsie Housing Authority. "This is an effective collaborative program that ensures the vast majority of funds go where they belong - to the deserving veterans who need the help."

The program was designed to address the needs of the most vulnerable homeless veterans. To be eligible for this program, veterans must be VA Health Care eligible, homeless and need to participate in case management services in order to obtain and sustain permanent independent community housing.

Eligible homeless veterans receive VA-provided case management and services to support stability and recovery from physical and mental illnesses, substance use, and functional concerns contributing to or resulting from homelessness.

A veteran of the U.S. Navy, Hinchey served in the Pacific on the destroyer U.S.S. Marshall after graduating from high school. He is a strong proponent of veterans issue on the House Appropriations Committee. Last year, Hinchey announced he helped secure a $575,000 investment to help pay for new supportive housing in the Village of Walden for female veterans returning from Iraq and Afghanistan to the Hudson Valley who face difficult economic and other challenges

Republican Press release:

"Republicans are rallying around the 'cut, cap and balance' measure as their answer to the debt talks as negotiations between the administration and congressional leaders have stalled." (Sam Youngman, "Obama officially threatens to veto Republicans' 'cut, cap and balance' bill," The Hill, 07/18/11)

"The Cut, Cap and Balance legislation ... would implement steep cuts in government spending and set hard discretionary spending caps. It would also make an increase in the debt limit contingent on Congress sending a constitutional balanced budget amendment to the states for ratification." (Meredith Shiner, "Reid to Put Cut, Cap and Balance Bill in Motion," Roll Call, 07/21/11)

Democratic Press release:

Washington, D.C. - Nevada Senator Harry Reid released the following statement on the status of debt-ceiling negotiations. "Tonight, talks broke down over Republicans' continued insistence on a short-term raise of the debt ceiling, which is something that President Obama, Leader Pelosi and I have been clear we would not support. A short-term extension would not provide the certainty the markets are looking for, and risks many of the same dire economic consequences that would be triggered by default itself. Speaker Boehner's plan, no matter how he tries to dress it up, is simply a short-term plan, and is therefore a non-starter in the Senate and with the President. "In an effort to reach a bipartisan compromise, we are putting together a $2.7 trillion deficit reduction package that meets Republicans' two major criteria: it will include enough spending cuts to meet or exceed the amount of a debt ceiling raise through the end of 2012, and it will not include revenues. We hope Speaker Boehner will abandon his 'my way or the highway' approach, and join us in forging a bipartisan compromise along these lines."

Cost Of The War By Ken Dilanian, USA TODAY, WASHINGTON - The cost of the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan could total $2.4 trillion through the next decade, or nearly $8,000 per man, woman and child in the country, according to a Congressional Budget Office estimate scheduled for release Wednesday.

Is it fair to Cut Social Security and Medicare while transnational corps wage wars of profit and pay almost no taxes or none at all, while making billions of dollars of net profits?

"Every gun that is made, every warship launched, every rocket fired, signifies in the final sense a theft from those who hunger and are not fed, those who are cold and are not clothed." - President Dwight D. Eisenhower April 16, 1953

Frost Valley Goes Green, Earns Bronze

Frost Valley YMCA in Claryville has become the first to earn Tier 1 - Bronze Certification from the Green Concierge (GC) Project sponsored in part by the CWC.

Green Concierge, administered by the environmental consulting firm HospitalityGreen, is working with 30 hospitality businesses to help them lessen their impact on the environment. At Frost Valley, 24 staff members have participated in onsite training and the institution has implemented a number of major sustainable practices, including replacing all light bulbs with energy efficient ones, recycling, composting, disposing of hazardous waste, using non-toxic cleaning products, upgrading sinks, showerheads and toilets to water-conserving models, purchasing recycled-content soft tissues, paper towels and office paper, and sourcing local produce whenever possible.

Tom Holsapple, Frost Valley's Director of Operations, said, "Working with GC has formalized our sustainability efforts and presented an opportunity to refresh what was started years ago. Ultimately, it has changed the culture of our organization and our efforts will be passed along to the 40,000 people a year who come our facility. Seventy percent of those guests are kids, so we are creating a healthy and sustainable place and environmental awareness for the next generation."

Solar Jobs Act is a Cost Effective Solution Soaring Energy Prices Caused by Heat Wave

(Albany, NY)-As New York endured another day of crushing heat that strained the state's electric grid and drove energy prices to astronomical levels, Assembly Energy Committee Chair Kevin Cahill (D-Ulster, Dutchess) called for the passage of the Solar Industry Development and Jobs Act of 2011 (A.5713), as a cost effective mechanism to drive down costs, increase system reliability and improve air quality. The legislation is a market-based approach that will accelerate investments in solar power throughout New York.

"New York has a huge untapped potential for solar energy, particularly during times like these when our energy costs are through the roof and we are forced to rely on inefficient, dirty power plants to meet our electricity needs," said Assemblymember Cahill. "This innovative program is a cost effective solution that will allow us to produce clean, renewable power while creating new economic opportunities throughout the State."

According to data obtained from the New York Independent System Operator, at 4:00 PM on Thursday of last week, electricity on the day ahead market was trading at an average of $219 per megawatt hour. Prices on Long Island topped out at an astounding $636 per megawatt hour and New York City peaked at nearly $300 by 6:00 PM. Earlier this week the Departments of Environmental Conservation and Health issued an Air Quality Health Advisory due to an increase in harmful emissions.

"Passing the Solar Jobs Act will help New Yorkers avoid expensive investments in transmission and distribution systems and the costs associated with the environmental and public health problems caused by increased air pollution," said Assemblymember Cahill. "Other states already have effective programs up and running, it is just common sense for New York to do the same."

Once a leader in solar development, New York has fallen behind neighboring states like New Jersey. Despite tremendous in-state growth potential and a good solar resource, New York's installed solar photovoltaic (PV) capacity currently represents less than 3% of the national share, or approximately 54 megawatts (MW). By comparison, New Jersey installed more than twice that amount of new solar in 2010 alone. To reverse this trend, the Solar Jobs Act provides an effective framework for long-term solar market growth and job creation in New York.

In its current form, the bill would:

- Develop 2,500 MW of solar PV by 2020;
- Create tens of thousands of new high quality jobs, from manufacturing and design to construction and operation;
- Generate a multi-billion dollar boost in wages and economic output that could be reinvested in New York's economy;
- Deliver maximum solar benefits at minimum cost to New York electricity consumers; and
- Decrease the state's production of harmful emissions by reducing the need for fossil fuel based electricity generation, especially at times of peak energy demand.

The New York Solar Jobs Act is supported by a broad coalition, including: ACE NY, the American Lung Association in New York, Citizens Campaign for the Environment, Environmental Advocates of New York, Environment New York, New York Interfaith Power and Light, New York League of Conservation Voters, NRDC, Pace Climate and Energy Center, Physicians for Social Responsibility - New York Chapter, Renewable Energy Long Island, Solar Alliance, Solar One and the Vote Solar Initiative.
